A guide regarding risks and reg flags indicative of elder financial abuse

Senior Citizens: At-Risk Group for Financial Exploitation and Abuse

As America ages, fraud and exploitation that targets elderly investors is on the rise.

Three factors render senior citizens attractive targets for financial abuse:

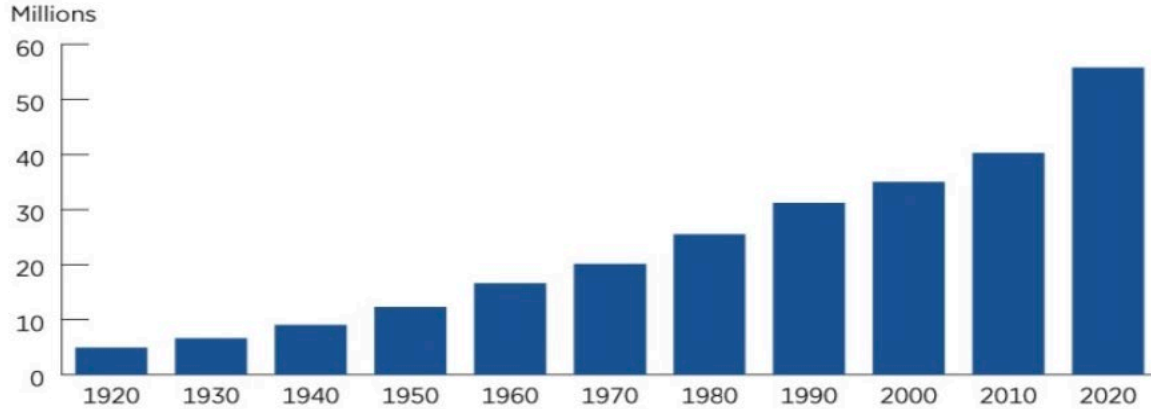

- 1) they often accumulate a significant nest's egg throughout their working life;
- 2) they frequently lack investment sophistication to safely invest their life savings; and
- 3) as they grow older, cognitive deterioration causes them to increasingly rely on others for their financial affairs.

Aging on the rise

The nation's 65-and-older population is projected to nearly double in size in coming decades, from 49 million in 2016 to 95 million people in 2060.

According to the US Census Bureau, people aged 65 and older will grow from about 15 percent in 2016 to nearly a quarter of the population in 2060.

Recognizing Elder Financial Abuse

Typical Definitions

Financial Abuse

“the fraudulent or otherwise illegal, unauthorized, or improper act... that uses the resources of an elder for monetary or personal benefit, profit, or gain, or that results in depriving an elder the rightful access to, or use of, benefits, resources, belongings, or assets.” – Elder Justice Act 2010

Financial Exploitation

“the fraudulent or otherwise illegal, unauthorized, or improper act or process of an individual, including a caregiver or a fiduciary, that (i) uses the resources of a senior citizen for monetary or personal benefit, profit, or gain; or (ii) results in depriving a senior citizen of rightful access to or use of benefits, resources, belongings, or assets.” – Senior Safe Act 2018

Usual Perpetrators of Elder Financial Abuse

The most common perpetrators of elder financial abuse include:

- ▷ Friends
- ▷ Family members
- ▷ Financial advisors or brokers
- ▷ Caregivers
- ▷ New acquaintances (or even strangers)
- ▷ Fake businesses or government agents

How Is Elder Financial Abuse Perpetrated?

- ▶ Misusing or stealing an elderly person's money or possessions.
- ▶ Coercing or deceiving an elderly person into signing legal documents.
- ▶ Improper use of conservatorship, guardianship, or power-of-attorney to take control of an elderly person's assets.

Potential Signs of Elder Financial Abuse

- ▶ Sudden changes or unusual transactions in bank statements.
- ▶ A growing interest of the perpetrator in the victim's assets.
- ▶ Financial transactions that the victim has difficulty explaining.
- ▶ New “best friends”.
- ▶ History of substance abuse, gambling etc.
- ▶ Disputes regarding future inheritance.

Risk Factors – Elder Financial Abuse or Exploitation

Unethical Investment Firms – pt. 1

- ▶ Most advisors are ethical and want to do the right thing for their clients. However, the few who are not could inflict serious harm on elderly clients.
- ▶ Financial firms that hire advisers with multiple ethical violations are more concentrated in areas with large elderly populations.

Unethical Investment Firms – pt. 2

- ▶ Some firms sell overly complex, difficult to understand, high risk, illiquid, and high commission products to elderly clients.
- ▶ Older consumers whose financial literacy and/or cognitive skills have declined may be particularly vulnerable to the sale of unsuitable investments.

Source: Michael S. Finke, John S. Howe, Sandra J. Huston. Old Age and the Decline in Financial Literacy. Management Science, 2016; DOI: 10.1287/mnsc.2015.2293

Social Isolation

- ▶ Senior investors who are isolated or suffering from cognitive decline may be particularly vulnerable to harm. (SEC, IOSCO Senior Investor Vulnerability Final Report (March 2018))
- ▶ Elderly investors are more likely to be victimized if they are isolated and do not have someone to discuss investment proposals with. (Finrafoundation.org)

Overconfidence

- ▶ Financial literacy is lower in people aged 60 and older, declining 1% each year.
- ▶ Tendency to take financial risks, and confidence in one's ability to make good financial decisions, is higher among the elder population.

Underreporting of Elder Financial Abuse - 1

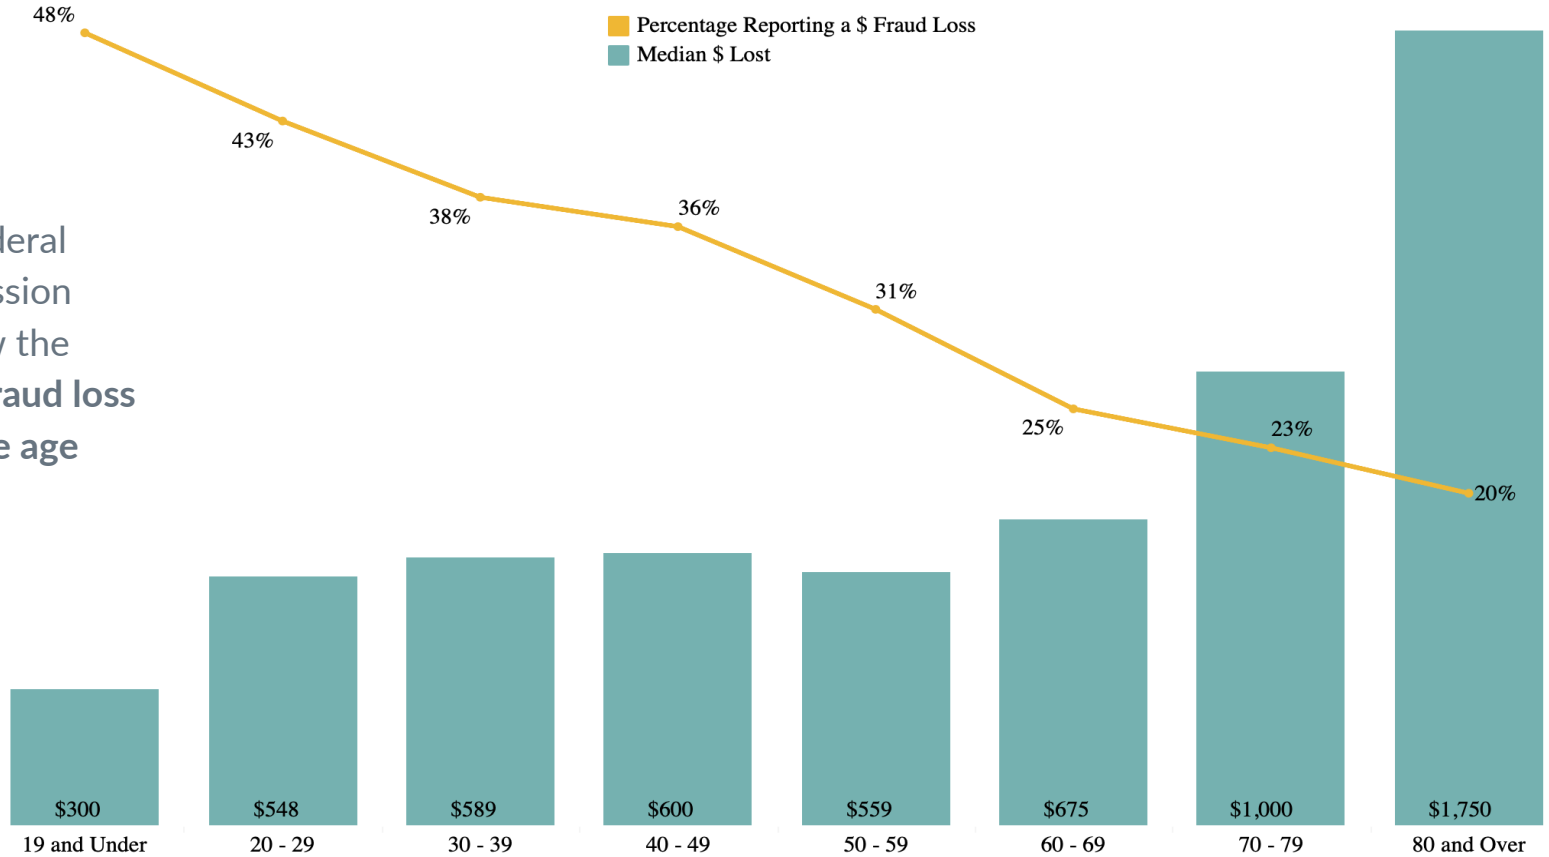

Most elderly investor financial abuse cases go unreported:

“Elder financial abuse occurs when someone illegally or improperly appropriates money or belongings from an older person for their own personal use. While this financial exploitation takes many forms, including online scams, according to the National Adult Protective Services Association (NAPSA) the vast majority of reports involve perpetrators who are related to or in a trusting relationship with the victim.”

‘Why the Elder Financial Abuse Goes Underreported’ by Deb Taylor, July 25, 2023

Undereporting of Elder Financial Abuse - 2

Data from Federal Trade Commission illustrates how the reporting of fraud loss declines as the age increases.

How to Help Prevent Elder Financial Abuse

Authorities Advocate For Prevention

“While our Enforcement division is vigilant in pursuing bad actors and returning money to harmed investors – prevention is critical for this community. Often, older Americans do not have other financial resources to turn to if they have lost a substantial portion of their savings through fraud or exploitation.”

Jay Clayton, former chair of the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission

Before Agreeing to Liquidate Retirement Savings:

- ▶ Ask for a second opinion.
  - research shows that victim isolation is one of the main prerequisites to financial exploitation. Contact a family member, friend, or trusted organization for a second opinion.
- ▶ Conduct research.
  - an internet search may reveal if an investment opportunity has been flagged as potentially fraudulent.
- ▶ Learn to spot red flags.
  - FINRA, NASAA and the SEC encourage investors to subscribe to consumer newsletters to keep up with the latest scams and scammer tactics.

Learn to Spot Red Flags – pt. 1

- ▶ “If it sounds too good to be true, it probably is”: an investment opportunity promoted as risk-free or with guaranteed returns is often indicative of investment fraud.
- ▶ “Buy now!”: avoid investments that come with pressure to invest within a tight deadline and without the opportunity to study and evaluate the investment.
- ▶ Lack of registration: research shows that older investors are often targeted by unlicensed or unregistered promoters. To check if an investment professional is licensed or registered, investors may:
  - Search the name of the professional at FINRA BrokerCheck or SEC IAPD.
  - Contact the state securities regulators.

Learn to Spot Red Flags – pt. 2

- ▶ Licensed or registered professionals with problematic background: be cautious or refrain from investing with licensed brokers or registered investment advisors whose background contain any of the following:
- High number of customer complaints;
  - Sanctions by state or federal regulators;
  - Termination for violations of the securities regulations;
  - Multiple employers over a short period of time;
  - Past employment with multiple firms expelled from the securities industry.

Seek Legal Advice – pt. 1

Victims of elder financial abuse and/or their family members, caregivers, and non-legal professionals such as CPAs or advisors should consider seeking the help of experienced legal counsel.

An attorney who has experience with elder financial abuse matters may help spot elder financial abuse and suggest the appropriate course of action for elder financial abuse victims.

Seek Legal Advice – pt. 2

Ask about upfront costs or fees: law firms that represent elderly clients may be willing to take financial abuse case on a contingency fee basis. This means that the law firm will not ask for any attorney's fees in advance, and will be paid for its fees only if it secures a successful outcome.

Ask about free consultations: it is not uncommon for law firms that represent elderly clients to offer free case evaluations to potential victims and/or their family members.

Take Action Without Delay

If you suspect elderly financial abuse, you should take action without delay.

Legal claims related to investments are typically subject to time limits and may be lost if not pursued in a timely manner.

Evidence may be lost, witness memories may fade, perpetrators may run away or go bankrupt.
